THE MoMA DESIGN STORE ANNOUNCES OPEN CALL FOR NYC PRODUCT DESIGNERS

To showcase the creative innovation happening today in New York City, the MoMA Design Store is inviting local designers living and working in the city's five boroughs to submit items for a product collection launching in 2013. Product categories will include, but are not limited to, paper (note cards, postcards, journals), home (tabletop, kitchen, home textiles, desk, kids', gadgets/tools), personal accessories (bags, jewelry, scarves, wallets, pouches, and other small accessories), furniture (wall clocks, stools, lighting), and books.

In order for your submission to be considered, products must be already, or soon-to-be, in production, manufactured in the continental United States, and able to be delivered to MoMA in saleable condition.

Interested designers should visit MoMAstore.org/NYC for more information about the submission process.
